When The Boys Come Home

By the end of May, 87,500 soldiers and sailors will be sent home, with 255,000 scheduled for return in June. Some of these men will be mustered out. Some will be convalescents. Some will stop over on their way to the Pacific theater. But the boys are coming home.

The thing they have waited for—and all of us have waited for—is beginning. Its modifications are less important than the main fact, which is the start of demobilization. The peak of the war crisis is past, as far as manpower mobilization is concerned.

Everything that has been looked forward to—"when the boys come home"—now becomes actuality "as the boys come home". The first installment of the post-war era is falling due. The second installment will follow in due course, perhaps sooner, perhaps later than expected.

Plans must be translated into practice. All the ideas that have preoccupied the minds of individuals and held the attention of groups in business and government now must be applied to actual conditions of existence. America-Americans—must get set for their newest job. We may assume that the strategy for the remainder of the Japanese war has been decided on and will be put into effect; civilians are not directly concerned with that. We can assume that the strategy will be successful. As a fighting power the United States is no longer an unknown quantity.

A question mark hovers over only one thing—the nation's ability to go on from here in the right direction. As the boys come home, they will know what they want. They will have seen enough of the world to give them a strong sense of comparative values. We may believe that they will constitute a dynamic force in the nation without equal and without precedent in our history, if we make the most of it.

Chin Up, Chester!

One of the main uses of government in the United States is to provide something to criticize. This is not listed in the civics books, but all public officials know about it and expect it. They grow thick skins, if they're lucky.

Chester Bowles, the OPA administrator, is not a professional public official, though he has been connected with rationing since late in 1941. But we are not worried so much about Mr. Bowles as about the possibility the public may take him too seriously. He is, after all, just the fellow we jump on. There's nothing personal about it.

It is his fate and the fate of his agency to take the rap during the lean days of World War II, now beginning. Chester Bowles and/or OPA are being blamed for everything that's wrong. They've made their share of mistakes for a fact, some really serious, but in all fairness the public should remember that at heart this Bowles probably is a nice man and kind to his in-laws.

For instance, while it may be alleged in righteous anger that OPA and/or Chet Bowles deserve all the blame for shortages of meat and sugar, it should be remembered that in World War I there were shortages of meat and sugar, too. Not only were these commodities hard to come by in 1918 and thereafter, but they were available only at inflated prices. And for the benefit of the young and those with short memories, OPA had no counterpart in World War I. Rationing, such as it was, operated at the discretion of distributors and consisted largely of a series of days on which scarce commodities simply were not used.

If this is remembered, it will insure some sense of proportion in the hard thinking and speaking about OPA and/or that fellow Bowles. People used to say worse things about Herbert Hoover, and the Democrats still do. It's the price a man pays in the United States for being part of the dad-blasted government. It might be a comfort for that double dad-blasted Bowles to know there's nothing personal in it.

Unhappy Birthday

The War Labor Disputes (Smith-Connally) Act, which was supposed to prevent wartime strikes, will be two years old on June 25. Probably the only celebration of the event is already passed—a recent New York Times poll of a group of senators and representatives to find out what they thought of this particular example of their handiwork.

The results were pretty remarkable. Seventeen lawmakers approved the law as is. Twenty-two favored it with reservations (some thought it should be amended, others said it hadn't been properly enforced). Six disapproved it or would not vote for repeal. Two were bravely non-committal.

Even more remarkable was the fact that, although a dozen or so would like to see the law amended, none could suggest any improvement. A typical quotation was this: "It hasn't done any good and I'd be for any bill that is better, but I have no ideas."

Most remarkable of all was this statement: "I voted for it on the representation that it was anti-strike legislation, but I found out by reading the law later that it wasn't, so I have little regard for it."

We don't have any specific amendments to pass along to the puzzled lawmakers. But it seems to us that since the majority of congressmen polled felt that the law was something less than perfect, some one of them might do a little serious pondering on the possibility of improvement. The prevention of wartime strikes in essential industries would seem to be important enough to merit the effort.

A glance at some of the shortcomings of the Smith-Connally Act might suggest a solution. It should be obvious to all members—even the one who didn't bother to read the bill before voting for it—that this law hasn't stopped wartime strikes, and that it has actually invited them by the automatic procedure of a strike vote in unsettled disputes.

We wonder if the Smith-Connally Act really is beyond improvement, or if it is that Congress, having angrily overridden a veto to pass it two years ago, is now too proud or stubborn to admit that it was a bonehead mistake to do so.

Hitler's Last Days

No light is thrown on Hitler's mysterious disappearance by the confessions of his personal doctor, but it is comforting to know that the patient was not doing well when last seen.

According to his doctor, Theodore Morrell, Hitler had been living on his nerve for a matter of months and not doing a very good job at it. He received injections of glucose and caffeine regularly, partly to hold him up, partly to relieve stomach ache after meals. This may be the key to Hitler's whole mad career.

He was a self-confessed dyspeptic, a diet faddist. It helps to believe that even if he escaped at the last, his physical ruin already was an accomplished fact. His doctor, who claims to have been with his patient in the famous underground hideout in Berlin until dismissed just before the Russians won control of the city, says Hitler was worn out.

He may bob up somewhere. And if he does, the stomach ache will still be with him. The late Benito Mussolini was a dyspeptic, too, with an active peptic ulcer that laid him low in his declining days. Perhaps there is a moral: Beware of politicians with stomach aches. Two of them conspired in our time to give the whole world one of its worst headaches.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, May 26.

ALTHOUGH there may be an incentive to expand the plans and reach rather zealously for cherished ambitions of important scope, there is need of a careful study of small details and of a judicious use of well-organized strategies. This may attract the attention of influential persons, diplomatic or political and fraternal groups, yet these must be handled with proper approach. A misuse might involve material loss and personal popularity and prestige. Watch your step, but do not lag when opportunities arise.

Those whose birthday it is are favored by interesting openings for reaching high goals, possibly fantastic dreams or novel schemes. But all demand shrewd study of techniques, ways and means, with finesse and originality in the method of approaching those in high places, possibly if political, fraternal or public influence are of prime importance. Under such planetary auspices even dreams might become realities under practical manipulation.

A child born on this day might have many unusual talents and ambitions of unusual or unique character, with intuitions or "hunches" practically put into execution.

New Treatment for Virus Pneumonia

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
THERE ARE all kinds of pneumonias. Pneumonia means inflammation of the lung. The inflammation may be produced by infection with many different kinds of germs as well as viruses. One kind of pneumonia which has only been described in recent years is known as a typical pneumonia or virus pneumonia. It is thought that this condition is due to a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings of a porcelain filter.

Latent Fever
Virus pneumonia is like influenza in its symptoms and course. At first there is fever, which varies from 100 to 103 degrees but lasts for several days. This is accompanied by prostration, sweating and coughing. These symptoms clear up and there is a long recovery period during which the patient is weak and usually must remain in bed. There is a tendency for the symptoms to recur.

In examination of these patients, there are very few findings. This happens because the areas of the lung which are affected are small and are often deep in the lung structure and not near the surface. Many times the patient's breathing is slow and wheezing. Coughing occurs in attacks and a rattling. An X-ray examination of the chest is often helpful in making a diagnosis. There usually is a great deal of inflammation of the windpipe or trachea, and the larger tubes in the lungs known as the bronchi. This disorder often resembles asthmatic bronchitis in the wheezing and noisy breathing which it produces.

Sulfonamide Drugs
Virus pneumonia has been treated with the sulfonamide drugs as well as with penicillin, but it would not appear that they have had any great effect on it. Doctor Archie M. Roberts of California has treated a large number of patients with the drug known as aminophylline. He found that it served

War Happenings

By GRANT McDONAL

SAIPAN, In The Marianas, May 24.—(Delayed)—There's a billion dollar junkyard cut here near an old Japanese hangar. Inside the hangar it looks like any old pre-war junkyard, but outside all the junk is king-size.

Maj. Harry S. Weber, salvage and reclamation officer, and his assistant, Lieut. Norman Cortese, deal in the most valuable junk in the world, and they don't make a dime for themselves.

They gather up all the broken B-29 Superforts that come in beyond repair. They strip the Giants down, carefully check every piece of equipment worth saving, tag each one and send it to a central supply warehouse, then drag off the old smashed wings and fuselages to an aluminum boneyard.

In November and December, before we took Iwo Jima, folks around the junkyard worked overtime, trying to keep up with the mounting piles of wrecked planes smashed by Jap bombing and strafing attacks.

Shelters Came In Handy

"It was most annoying," Maj. Weber said, "when those Japs came in we had to interrupt our work every time and dive into a shelter."

"A couple of times they came in about noon, without any warning, and the first thing we knew they were strafing hell out of the field. The Japs who were here before had built some very fine bomb shelters, and I tell you, they sure worked well for us."

"Boy you should have seen some of the stuff we had to work on after those raids. Business was booming then. But do you know, even now it's pretty good. We figured out we average about a quarter of a million dollars worth of salvaged parts every month."

Lieut. Cortese pointed to an engine on a block.

"There's a beautiful job of salvage," he said. "That's a complete motor out of a fighter which crash landed here last week. We got it out of the wreck almost undamaged. It's about a hundred horsepower. We'll send it back to the states, where it'll be re-built and it'll probably be hitting the Japs again in a few months."

Blew 'Em Apart

Maj. Weber explained that the biggest job was breaking up the huge plane bodies after all valuable instruments and equipment had been removed.

"We used to cut the wings off and break up the big fuselages with oxy-acetylene torches," he said, "but that took too long. A couple of men used to take two days constant burning with torches, and they used more oxygen than we could afford. So we figured a new method."

"We strap blocks of TNT around the wings and bodies and blow the things apart. In a couple of hours we can knock a whole ship down into easily movable pieces."

Twelve native boys from a civilian camp are employed in the hangar, serving nuts and bolts and dismantling parts with wrenches and screwdrivers.

"These kids are quick to learn, and they seem to have a natural aptitude for mechanics," Maj. Weber said. "Just give them a wrench and they'll figure out how to dismantle even a complicated piece of machinery like a turbo supercharger."

Industrial Sugar Users Face Heavy Cut By OPA, Hint

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 25.—A congressional food investigator said today OPA is planning a drastic curtailment of industrial sugar which will cut manufacturers to half their 1944 supply, or less.

The new reduction will be announced for the third quarter of the year, effective July 1, said this law-maker who asked not to be named.

Sugar is rationed to industrial users—bakers, candy makers and the like—in quarterly allotments.

The new cut became necessary because civilian sugar consumption this year far exceeded the amount originally set aside.

Chairman Anderson (D., N. M.) of the house food committee said that in April alone, when use was supposed to be 60,000 tons under the corresponding month in 1944, consumption actually ran 95,000 tons ahead of last year. This resulted in a deficit of more than 150,000 tons.

To Make Up Deficit The withdrawal from sugar stockpiles came about, Anderson said, because OPA ration boards issued allotments in excess of the supply set aside for civilian consumption.

The over-draft must be made up beginning with the third quarter. The investigator said he did not know whether the restrictions would be extended to household supplies of sugar.

Industrial users, however, probably will be cut to 40 per cent or less of the amount they used in 1941. There was some indication they might be held to 30 per cent.

The War Production board disclosed today that the quota for pharmaceutical use of sugar may be reduced.

The present quota is 120 per cent of 1941 use, but John T. Batson, chief of the drugs and cosmetics branch, said this may be cut to 100 per cent, perhaps even to 90 per cent, for the third quarter of the year.

NAZIS ARE INDICTED BY OWN DOCUMENTS

(By Associated Press) BERGHESSGADEN, May 25.—Stenographic notes the Nazis tried unsuccessfully to destroy have revealed a secret, self-indicting account by Adolf Hitler saying he planned the "crushing" of Czechoslovakia and Poland as "essential preliminaries for the war of the future" against the Allies.

Hitler said Germany was "superlatively prepared" for the war and that psychologically she "could not afford to waste" Nazi-schooled fanaticism, which he feared might die down.

Hitler's report, made to division commanders last Dec. 12, was the most spectacular find to date by American officers studying thousands of pages of partly charred notes which are shaping up as a terrific indictment of Nazi war guilt.

Made just before the American Ardennes offensive, Hitler's statement belied the Nazis' excuse that they had started the war because of alleged Polish provocations. Hitler outlined his plans made in peacetime for war in this order:

"First, immediate introduction of universal military service.

"Second, re-establishment of German sovereignty through the occupation of the Rhineland and the creation of a fortifications system.

"Third, immediate annexation of Austria, crushing of Czechoslovakia and ultimate crushing of Poland in order to bring Germany, territorially, to a position for effective defense.

"If the course we then proposed to take should lead to a big war," Hitler continued, without specifying what that course was, "obviously war would have to be accepted. Because it was better to accept it then in a moment when we were superlatively prepared rather than at some other moment in which this advantage might have been lost."

"Finally there were psychological considerations, one being the mobilization of spiritual forces of the German nation.

"What we achieved through national socialist education, through a gigantic wave that engulfed the people, we could not afford to waste."

"I was convinced that in the next 10, 20, 30, maybe 50 years, no man would appear in Germany with more influence on the nation than I, with greater zeal in reaching decisions. I believe the years to come will prove I judged rightly."

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, May 25—Officials of 12 Cleveland meat packing houses which reported they would close throughout next week, will meet today for "further discussion."
The meeting was announced last night shortly after district office of Price Administration officials asserted the proposed shut-downs would not have any considerable effect on the local retail meat situation.

Spokesmen for the houses said yesterday they supplied 825 retail dealers, an estimated 75 per cent of the local butcher shops.
However, Lloyd Marks, a partner in the Fleischman Beef Co., said his company, and most of the others already have filled their quotas for the month.

The packers blamed government regulations for the shutdowns and said it was becoming increasingly difficult to produce meat for the civilian market.
They criticized a recent OPA order cutting back the small packers' quota, which, they claimed, reduced their operations to bare-existence levels.

Points Don't Release All Vets In Pacific

(By Associated Press)

MANILA, May 25.—The point system for mustering soldiers out of the Army still is foggy to many fighting men in this area, but the Southwest Pacific command is emphasizing one point—the mere possession of the required number of points doesn't guarantee discharge.

There's the matter of replacements, a serious complication in this area.

So many divisions have been in the Pacific fighting almost continuously since Pearl Harbor that obviously they will have among the maximum number of points to be found in the nation's armed forces.

Actually thousands of soldiers are likely to qualify under point totals without listing children or extra points for combat.

Arrival of replacements will be necessary before anyone can be returned home.

Some divisions which have the longest overseas records starting long before any Americans were sent to Africa or Europe are the 25th, 41st, Americal, 37th, 32nd, 24th. Some of these outfits have from a third to a half of their original soldiers.

The Southwest Pacific command, however, was emphatic in notifying soldiers that even if they get home on the point system they are not sure of being released from the Army because "military necessity comes first."

"Red Star" in Moscow had asserted that the London Polish government was training an "intervention force" for use in Poland—a claim which Polish quarters in London promptly denied.

So we could go on but it all adds up to this: The greatest service the forthcoming meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin can render will be to iron out the suspicions, and the causes of the suspicions. Presumably they will deal with all the European and Oriental situations which give rise to anxiety—and they are numerous.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

MARY: "Jim, didn't you say you wanted to ask the Judge something about grain, the next time you saw him?"

JIM: "That's right, I did, Mary. Is it true, Judge, that distillers recover part of the grain they use in making war-alcohol?"

OLD JUDGE: "That's absolutely true, Jim. Wherever the government has permitted distillers to purchase the equipment necessary to reprocess the used grain, at least 50% of the feed value (25% by weight) of the whole grain is recovered. It comes back to farms like yours in the form of premium-quality livestock feed...rich in vitamins B₁ and B₂."

JIM: "Is the same thing true when distillers are permitted to make whiskey, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Yes, every bit as true, Jim."

A SONG to REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

XV
THE renown of Franz Liszt, that touchy Hungarian, who as a child had been kissed by Beethoven, spread over the world. As composer and pianist, he was a vigorous mover. He had even dared, it is said, to strike the keys with his foot! Whatever the truth of that, he had indeed explored the possibilities of the pianoforte before anything ever before attempted.

But his renown was not limited to his dexterity as a pianist. He was also a composer. His fame was at its height. No woman had ever enjoyed greater popularity. The France of Louis Philippe would not have been proud to have "Franz Liszt" as a guest. "Franz Liszt is mine." The most beautiful women of Europe had sought his attention. The most talented men in literature and art called him friend. There was not a salon in Paris to which his bon vivant was not welcome.

Frederic's heart pounded. His mouth was agape. His eyes feasted on Franz Liszt. Chopin's music, it was guiding the fingers of the immortal! It was the Polish in A-flat being played, yes, exactly as it must be played, as Frederic himself had dreamed it would be played.

Louis Playel, his coat-tails flying, reached the handsome virtuoso. "Maestro!" He bent low.

"Playel," Liszt said without looking up, "who wrote this?"

Louis Playel turned to his secretary. "DuPont! Who wrote this?"

Henri Dupont looked at Louis Playel and Louis Playel looked at Henri Dupont. Henri Dupont shook his head. Louis Playel moved his shoulders.

Frederic had taken a step closer. In another until, one step and other, he was very close.

Frederic's head wagged in rhythm to the music. He removed his spectacles from his nose and wiped them, although they did not require wiping.

Frederic was seized with an impulse to speak with Liszt in the language of Liszt! He was unnoticed by Louis Playel. He was noticed by Henri Dupont. He was noticed by Jozef Elsner. He was noticed only by the gaping clerk at the back of the room who threw up his hands as Frederic seated himself at a piano at Liszt's back—and struck the keys. His tones melted into those of Liszt. So Liszt and Chopin played together. They played in perfect and exact rhythm. back to back, yet together.

Frederic Liszt, without taking his eyes from the score, said, over the music: "The composer!"

Louis Playel exchanged glances with Henri Dupont. Louis Playel moved his shoulders. And Henri Dupont, not to be outdone, moved his.

But Jozef Elsner had heard. He also saw. He almost spluttered. But he kept silent.

Frederic, now confident and with an utter disregard of Louis Playel and Henri Dupont, said: "You do me great honor, Monsieur Liszt."

Louis Playel took his eyes from the "touchy Hungarian" to glare at Frederic Chopin.

Louis Playel gulped. Henri Dupont gulped.

Franz Liszt said: "What do you call this?"

"A polonaise. It's unfinished—"

"Polonaise!"

"Yes."

"Spirit of Poland!"

"Yes."

"Magnificent!"

Frederic groped for words. "Thank you—thank you, Maestro."

They played on, together, and for some time the room was filled with no other sound but the tones of Chopin's unfinished polonaise.

Then Liszt said: "And you play with spirit, too."

"—Thank you, Maestro."

"I mean it, Monsieur; you have the fire of a patriot!"

"As to that, Maestro—I don't know—"

"I do know! And I should like very much to shake your hand—but I don't want to stop!"

"To take the hand of Franz Liszt!"

It was Frederic's turn to gulp.

Frederic gulped again. Then after his second gulp he was all right. Then he said, with airy exuberance: "If you play the melody and I the bass—"

"Excellent!"

Frederic played the bass, Liszt the melody. Then with their free hands they reached one for the other and clasped them warmly.

A portion of the score remained to be played. They played on, Liszt and Chopin!

Louis Playel coughed in his hand. "My dear Elsner—"

"—Eh?"

"Two weeks! Is that enough time?"

Jozef Elsner touched his kerchief to his face. "Eh?"

Louis Playel said: "I am asking if Monsieur Chopin can get a concert ready in two weeks?"

"—Louis—" Jozef Elsner's jaw started to work again. But he could not speak.

Louis Playel raised his voice: "Isn't that what you came to Paris for?"

Frederic was laughing over the melody of the polonaise.

But there were tears in Jozef Elsner's eyes. Then he caught his voice. "Yes," he said, nodding. "Naturally. Why else did we come to Paris?"

12 Meat Packers Ready To Close In Cleveland

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, May 25—Officials of 12 Cleveland meat packing houses which reported they would close throughout next week, will meet today for "further discussion."

The meeting was announced last night shortly after district office of Price Administration officials asserted the proposed shut-downs would not have any considerable effect on the local retail meat situation.

Spokesmen for the houses said yesterday they supplied 825 retail dealers, an estimated 75 per cent of the local butcher shops.

However, Lloyd Marks, a partner in the Fleischman Beef Co., said his company, and most of the others already have filled their quotas for the month.

The packers blamed government regulations for the shutdowns and said it was becoming increasingly difficult to produce meat for the civilian market.

They criticized a recent OPA order cutting back the small packers' quota which, they claimed, reduced their operations to bare-existence levels.

Examine Jap "Balloon Bomb"

Maj. J. F. Bojiano, left, Army Air Corps balloon expert, and Capt. W. B. Standard of Army Intelligence, examine a section of a Japanese bomb that, carried by a paper balloon (background), was launched against the United States by the Japs. The War and Navy departments said such attacks were sporadic and had caused no important damage. Balloon bombs have been found in western part of the country for the last several months. (NEA Photofoto)

Points Don't Release All Vets In Pacific

(By Associated Press)

MANILA, May 25.—The point system for mustering soldiers out of the Army still is foggy to many fighting men in this area, but the Southwest Pacific command is emphasizing one point—the mere possession of the required number of points doesn't guarantee discharge.

There's the matter of replacements, a serious complication in this area.

So many divisions have been in the Pacific fighting almost continuously since Pearl Harbor that obviously they will have among the maximum number of points to be found in the nation's armed forces.

Actually thousands of soldiers are likely to qualify under point totals without listing children or extra points for combat.

Arrival of replacements will be necessary before anyone can be returned home.

Some divisions which have the longest overseas records starting long before any Americans were sent to Africa or Europe are the 25th, 41st, America, 37th, 32nd, 24th.

Some of these outfits have from a third to a half of their original soldiers.

The Southwest Pacific command, however, was emphatic in notifying soldiers that even if they get home on the point system they are not sure of being released from the Army because "military necessity comes first."

due will complete one week of them at that time.

"Red Star" in Moscow had asserted that the London Polish government was training an "intervention force" for use in Poland—a claim which Polish quarters in London promptly denied.

So we could go on but it all adds up to this! The greatest service the forthcoming meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin can render will be to iron out the suspicions, and the causes of the suspicions. Presumably they will deal with all the European and Oriental situations which give rise to anxiety—and they are numerous.

Fined $12,500, Sentenced To Jail For Gambling

SPRINGFIELD, May 25.—Joseph Parisi, 40, and Ralph Schaer, 36, of Dayton, were each fined $12,500 and sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday when they pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with operating a gambling resort and conducting a numbers racket.

They previously had entered innocent pleas to the indictments returned by a special grand jury called by Common Pleas Judge Golden C. Davis. The pair still faces bribery charges in connection with alleged gambling operations at the Silver Dollar, a Clark county night spot.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

MARY: "Jim, didn't you say you wanted to ask the Judge something about grain, the next time you saw him?"

JIM: "That's right, I did, Mary. Is it true, Judge, that distillers recover part of the grain they use in making war-alcohol?"

OLD JUDGE: "That's absolutely true, Jim.
Wherever the government has permitted distillers to purchase the equipment necessary to reprocess the used grain, at least 50% of the feed value (25% by weight) of the whole grain is recovered. It comes back to farms like yours in the form of premium-quality livestock feed... rich in vitamins B₁ and B₂."

JIM: "Is the same thing true when distillers are permitted to make whiskey, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Yes, every bit as true, Jim."

XV
THE renown of Franz Liszt, that "Hungarian" who, as a child had been kissed by Beethoven, is spread over the world. As composer and pianist, he was a vigorous and even dared, it is said, to strike the keys with a nail! Whatever the truth of it, he had indeed explored the abilities of the pianoforte before anything ever before attempt-

But his renown was not limited to his dexterity as a pianist or to his genius as a composer.
There was at his feet, no woman glamor enjoyed greater popularity. There was not a Duchess of the France of Louis Philippe who would not have been proud to say "Franz Liszt is mine." The most beautiful women of Europe had sought his attention. The most talented men in music literature and art called him friend. There was not a salon in Paris to which this bon vivant did not welcome.

Frederic's heart pounded. His mouth was agape. His eyes feasted on the face of Franz Liszt.
It was his, Chopin's music.
But it was immortal! It was the Polonease in A-flat being played, yes, exactly as it must be played, as Frederic himself had dreamed it could be played.

Louis Pleyel, his coat-ends flying, watched the handsome virtuoso.
Maestro! He bent low.

"Pleyel," Liszt said without looking up, "who wrote this?"

Louis Pleyel turned to his secretary, "Dupont! Who wrote this?"

Henri Dupont looked at Louis Pleyel and Louis Pleyel looked at Henri Dupont. Henri Dupont shook his head. Louis Pleyel moved his shoulders also.

Frederic had taken a step closer, then another until, one step and another, he was very close.

Frederic's head wagged in rhythm to the music. He removed his spectacles from his nose and wiped them, although they did not require wiping.

Frederic was seized with an impulse to speak with Liszt in the language of Liszt. He was understood by Louis Pleyel. He was noticed by Henri Dupont. He was noticed by Jozef Elsner. He was noticed only by the gaping clerk at the back of the room who threw up his hands as Frederic seated himself at a piano at Liszt's back—and began to play. His tones melted into those of Liszt. So Liszt and Chopin played together. They played in perfect and exact rhythm, back to back, yet together.

Frans Liszt, without taking his eyes from the score, said, over the music, "The composer!"

Louis Pleyel exchanged glances with Henri Dupont. Louis Pleyel

DIRECTIONS FOLLOWED TO THE RED LETTER

WILSON, N. C.—A ration board clerk returned an unsigned gasoline application with the directions, "Please complete and sign your application in the place checked with red pencil." The form came back unsigned.

Miss Jones returned it again with instructions that it be signed.

Back came the application, with this note: "Please, pardon me, I can't find a red pencil here in Elm City. I borrowed this one from the bank. That was why I couldn't write with red first. Thank you."

The signature was in red.

RALEIGH, N. C.—Now comes something to disconcert the cows—they are susceptible to hay fever.

William Moore, North Carolina's official veterinarian, reports that an experiment showed 40 per cent of one group of cows sensitive to ragweed pollen. Moore says he believes the allergy causes various maladies among cows—heaves and eczema, for example, in addition to hay fever.

CONTENTS KNOWN—AND APPRECIATED

CHICAGO—A truck jolted down California ave., and, unseen by the driver, a 64-pound carton bounced to the pavement. A dozen housewives and six men pounced on it like wolves on a fallen deer.

A woman produced a knife and started to divide the contents. Others, impatient, dug up the stuff with their hands.

It was butter.

WHO WEARS THE PANTS IN THIS MAN'S NAVY?

ABOARD A COAST GUARD-MANNED ASSAULT TRANSPORT, In The Pacific—Men buying new dungarees in the Pacific noticed their trousers had an unfamiliar roominess about the hips. Then the truth came out. The dungarees these fighting sailors bought were designed for SPARS and WAVES whose duties required rough-wear clothing. Confronted with a shortage, the Navy had shipped out the feminine garments for use aboard ship. At the moment nothing short of official urging will persuade anyone he really needs a new pair of pants.

American soldiers are giving their very lives but we are only being asked to lend our money during the Seventh War Loan—the big double drive that will have to do the work of the two drives we had by this time last year.

If you have any income, from any source—whether from work, land or capital—you have a personal quota in this drive. Find out what your quota is—fill it—and then buy more Bonds if you can. Your home-front duty is to help put the Seventh War Loan over the top. Let's do our job well!

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

PARIS, May 19 — Someone got weary of reading the honied accounts of America's returning hero air warriors and wrote a parody account of the homecoming of such a gay, cocky, young flier that was half the European theater of operations in stitches.

The pilots, themselves, think it is wonderful, because they think the acclaim that greets their exploits is sometimes false and foolish and smacks of mock heroics.

So with all public apologies to the original anonymous author—in whatever pub or opium den he has dreamed—herewith follows the heavily censored report of his version of the public interview granted by one home-leave rewarded warrior who made his name and fame—supposedly—over Europe when the skies were full of enemy planes instead of rainclouds.

The scene is the Pentagon building in Washington, that world capital of military omniscience and by-passed colonels. The characters are Lt. Roger Rudder, "America's leading ace" just back from the war zones, a group of homefront news reporters and good old Col. Edgar Beaver of Army public relations.

It Went Like This

Here is the interview:

Press: Welcome home, Lt. Rudder. How do you feel being back in the United States again?

Lt.: Pretty punked off, Mac.

Col. (to press): Lt. Rudder means his eyes were misty when the outlines of the Statue of Liberty, symbol of the American faith and fight for freedom, loomed into sight.

Press: What is the first thing you are going to do in America?

Lt.: Find me a girl, of course.

Col.: He intends to say he will fly back to his old home to see his home and the old folks.

Press: Are they going to give you the Congressional Medal of Honor?

Lt.: Well they damn well should.

Col.: Lt. Rudder's modesty disclaims any high awards. "Every man in the battleline deserves it as much as I" is what he said.

Press: How about the case of champagne you were going to get for breaking the American record for shooting down planes?

Lt.: Aw, they backed down. They didn't deliver it.

Col.: Lt. Rudder is a teetotaler. The price of the case of champagne was generously donated to Russian war relief at his suggestion.

Press: How did you shoot down all those planes?

Lt.: I guess I am a pretty hot pilot.

Col.: Lt. Rudder is bashful and attributes all his success to a combination of teamwork, luck and superior equipment.

Press: How about the Japanese?

Lt.: Those skunkheads — They don't know their ear from third base.

Col.: What the lieutenant means to say is that the quality of Japanese airmen is declining.

Where's That Girl?

Press: What about your mechanic? Was he pretty good?

Lt.: That dumb son of a piano player. He was born with seven thumbs up his nose. It was a miracle I ever got off the ground.

Col.: Rudder is lavish in his praise of our courageous ground crews, who work night and day to keep 'em flying.

Press: We understand you are going to visit the factory that made your plane.

Lt.: Yeah, that's if those gold-bricks aren't out on strike. I'd like to get my hands on that lame-brain who welded his lunch box on my tail section.

Col.: He is proud of American workers and the magnificent job they are doing to back the attack.

Lt.: Sorry boys, I've got to get out of here before the bars close and see if I can meet me a cute girl. So long.

Col.: Yes, Lt. Rudder cannot wait to get back to his mother's apple pie, the girl he left behind him, and the main street he played Indian on as a boy. If there are any other questions I believe I can answer them, gentlemen.

Cleveland Moves Into Fifth Place As Detroit Loses Man

Benton Of Tigers Breaks Leg, Pitching Now Goes To Two-Man Wonders

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit is back to a two-man pitching staff today with Al Benton, the No. 3 man, lost for at least a month with a broken right leg. The ex-sailor, who had allowed only four runs and 31 hits in 57 1/3 innings and had won five games compared to one defeat, a 1-0 loss to Washington last Sunday, was laid low in the fourth inning yesterday by a drive off the bat of Philadelphia's Roberto Estalella. The Athletics went on to score all their runs off Benton's successors and defeat the Tigers 7-2.

Benton's loss puts Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout back on the swing shift schedule of last year when the pitching pair took part in 96 games and won 56. With Benton sharing a large part of the burden, Hurricane Hal and Tornado Trout were able to take a three-day rest, something they didn't get last year.

Russ Christopher handcuffed the Bengals with eight hits to register his sixth triumph. A batting order mixup in which George Kell and Ervin Hall batted out of turn resulted in a decision that caused both managers to protest the game.

The New York Yankees drubbed the league leading Chicago White Sox, 6-3, moving past Detroit into second place and only a half-game off the pace. Atley Donald was hit for 12 blows but four Pale Hose errors and 11 Yankee safeties saved him from trouble.

Gromek Hot

Best pitched game of the day was a night tilt in Washington won by Cleveland's Steve Gromek over Roger Wolff, 1-0, on a five-hit effort. Doubles by Pat Seery and Jim McDonnell broke it up in the tenth.

Rookie Ben Steiner contributed four hits, including a two-run homer, to the Boston cause as the Red Sox made it two straight over St. Louis, 8-6. Pinky Woods received credit for his first starting game triumph.

Danny Gardella, a New York Giant substitute outfielder, gave the National league pacemakers a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati with an eighth-inning pinch homer with Buddy Kerr on base. Bill Voiselle's old Cincinnati jinx—he's never beaten them—continued to hex the ace right-hander in search of a ninth successive win and Ace Adams, second of three relief men, got the credit over 44-year-old Hod Lisenbee.

Charles (Red) Barrett, acquired by St. Louis from Boston in the Mort Cooper deal, made his first appearance for the Red Birds and registered a 7-5 success over Brooklyn, helping his cause with a double that chased Hal Gregg in a four-run fourth frame.

Pittsburgh was forced into extra innings for the second straight day but again downed Boston, 10-9 on Jack Barrett's circuit cloud in the tenth.

The Phillies turned back Chicago, 6-3, on a brilliant five-hit effort by Kewpie Dick Barrett who decided Paul Derringer.

GIANTS WILL HOLD DISTRICT TRYOUTS

Salem and district baseball players interested in trying out for the New York Giants will have their opportunity to perform before Giant scouts at Lake Park, Alliance, next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Marty Purtell, Giant scout for this section, will head a quartet of big league scouts planning to conduct a school and tryout camp at the park diamond next week.

All interested players from Salem and vicinity are urged to bring uniforms, gloves and shoes and report to Alliance on one of those days. They will be given workouts under the supervision and instruction of the scouts.

The rehearsals will begin at 9 a. m. each day.

ILLINI ARE KEY TO TRACK UPSET IN BIG TEN MEET

It's Up to Leo Johnson's Lads To Turn Trick To Dethrone Michigan

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 25.—Unless Coach Leo Johnson of Illinois can pull a few jacksrabbits out of a hat, Michigan's Wolverines appear ready to romp off with their 21st Western Conference outdoor track and field championship here tomorrow.

Coach Ken Doherty's Wolverines, who concentrated their scoring power in the 880, mile and two mile to edge out Illinois in the Conference indoor meet in March, apparently are stronger outdoors than they were on the tankard.

Illinois, meanwhile, has lost scoring power since it was edged out by Michigan, 55 1/10 to 54 1/10 indoors, and has the added handicap of three injured stars who may, or may not, be in top condition for Saturday's meet in Memorial stadium.

Other conference teams have not displayed enough power either indoors or outdoors to be considered a threat. Illinois and Michigan have enough potential points between them to outscore all the other league teams.

The Illini and Michigan won all the indoor events except the shot put and high jump, with Bob Phelps of Illinois sharing the pole vault crown with John Schmidt of Ohio State. In tomorrow's meet, past performances indicate the two schools will repeat most of these performances, with Michigan possibly even bettering its point total while Illinois finishes second with perhaps 12 points less than it scored indoors.

Must Beat Wolverines

Coach Johnson's worries concerned Bob Kelley, last year's 440 and 880 yard champion, Bill Buser, suffered pulled leg muscles and Phelps a dislocated elbow several weeks ago. Also lost were the services of Dave Nichols, a point-winning hurdler who left school because of illness, and Joe Johnson, 440-yard ace, who was transferred to San Francisco by the Navy.

Johnson said he may run Kelley in the mile, rather than the 440, in an effort to cut into Michigan's point total in the longer races, but aside from that possibility and a threat from Wisconsin, it appeared the Wolverines would have things much their own way in their specialties. Ross and Bob Hume who finished in a dead heat in the mile in both last year's outdoor and this year's indoor meets, were virtually conceded nine points in that event.

Meanwhile, Minnesota's squad that finished third in the indoor meet with 21 1/2 points, still was intact.

Wisconsin was eighth in the indoor meet, but has come up with some middle distance runners who may threaten Michigan's hold on the majority of points in these three events.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

JACK BARRETT, Pirates—Downed Boston with 11th inning home run, 10-9.

DICK BARRETT, Phils—Held Cubs to five hits in pitching Philadelphia to 6-3 victory.

DANNY GARDELLA, Giants—Gave New York 7-6 edge over Cincinnati with two-run pinch hit homer in eighth inning.

BEN STEINER, Red Sox—Paced Boston's 14-hit attack against St. Louis in 8-6 triumph with four hits, including two-run homer.

BUD METHENY, Yankees—Drove home half New York's runs in 6-3 nod over White Sox with two singles and double.

RUSS CHRISTOPHER, Athletics—Joined six-win class by turning back Detroit, 7-2.

JIM McDONNELL, Indians—Broke up game with 10th inning double for 1-0 shutout of Washington.

CHARLEY (RED) BARRETT, Cardinals—Forgotten man of Mort Cooper deal made first start, a 7-5 victory over Dodgers, figuring in game-winning rally with double.

Sam Snead-Byron Nelson Match Rivals Baseball's World Series For Thrills

THE MAY 25-27 CLASH BETWEEN THE SOLING GIANTS PROMISES TO BE ONE OF THOSE SLUGGER VS. BOXER AFFAIRS.

IN ONE CORNER WILL BE SAMMY SNEAD—GOLF'S LONGEST CLOUTER.

IN THE OTHER WILL BE BYRON NELSON—HIS SOUND ALL-AROUND GAME MAKES HIM THE SPORTS TOP WINNER.

By AL VERMEER, NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — Practically every golfer in America—pro, amateur or Sunday dub—has taken sides in the forthcoming battle between Byron Nelson and Samuel Jackson Snead.

And this nation-wide surge of enthusiasm convinces the golfing fathers that at last they have struck upon a splendid idea.

They vision tremendous things for the future—a classic to compare with the World Series of baseball or a heavyweight championship prize fight. Already Fred Corcoran, tournament director of the Professional Golfers' Association, dreams of an annual meeting between the National Open and PGA titlists with the winner meeting Great Britain's foremost shotmaker.

Is Osenor

The unique 72-hole contest between Nelson and Snead is an excellent opening wedge. The masters will play two 18-hole rounds of medal play at Fresh Meadow, L. I., May 26, and 36 holes of match play the following day at West Orange's Essex Country Club.

Nelson won eight of 17 winter tournaments, captured $18,000 in War Bonds. Snead is his logical challenger with six victories in 15 tournaments good for $14,000 in bonds.

Lord Byron and Slammin' Sammy are natural rivals, although they try painfully to conceal any grudge that may exist and are quick to express admiration for each other's talents.

It was Snead who ignited the spark which flamed into the match. Discharged by the Navy because of a back injury following 26 months of service, the Virginia hill billy found Nelson at his loftiest peak, which is precisely where he had left him.

Nelson closed the winter swing with a ball of fire, again acclaimed the golfer of the year.

"I suppose he deserves it," remarked Snead, "but I could stand a little more convincing. Do you suppose he'd take me in a two-man field?"

Byron Would

Lord Byron would, and gladly. Corcoran arranged it as a benefit with all proceeds going to the PGA's fund for the rehabilitation of wounded soldiers. Everything was to be done in big league style. Snead spending a week in training at Mamaroneck, N. Y., under Craig Wood, while Nelson worked in Atlantic City, Big Ed Dudley in his corner.

If they split in the two styles of play, Corcoran admits nothing will be proved except that both games—Snead with his wallop and Nelson with his sound all-over game—have merit.

Twice on the tour of last winter they collided in play-offs. Snead beating Nelson at Gulfport and bowing to the Toledo umbrella man at Charlotte.

From there Byron Nelson went on to run wild winning four consecutive tournaments, which in the eyes of a majority of the addicts, makes him the favorite in the forthcoming match.

But Slammin' Sammy Snead could stand a little more convincing.

Win Baseball Playoffs

CLEVELAND, May 25.—Lakewood and Euclid Shore High schools will represent greater Cleveland in the state scholastic baseball finals at Columbus June 1-2. Lakewood defeated Cleveland St. Ignace 8 to 3 and Euclid Shore swamped Cleveland East Tech 10 to 1 yesterday in the metropolitan scholastic league playoffs.

PACK OSU CAMPUS WITH HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES, COACHES

Three-Ring Sports Carnival Slated To Be Run Off This Weekend

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, May 25.—The Ohio State University campus became a three ring athletic circus today as competition opened in the annual State High School track, golf and tennis meet.

The fourth ring, where the basketball usually perform, was vacant, however. Continuing bad weather delayed completion of the various district tournaments to such an extent that it was necessary to postpone the final tournament in that sport until next Friday and Saturday.

Today's program called for qualifying heats in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes and the 120-yard high and the 220-yard low hurdles. All final events will be runoff tomorrow.

The golfers will play the first 18 holes of their 36-hole stroke play tournament and the tennis players will battle through the first rounds of their tournament. Both the golf and tennis competition will be completed tomorrow.

The defending champs in track were Cleveland East Tech in Class A and Orange of Chagrin Falls in Class B.

Tech Skipped

East Tech skipped badly last week when it qualified for only six places in the state meet and the Scarabs were doped to have the hardest kind of a fight to win their seventh successive state title.

Columbus East, Mansfield, Lakewood, Akron North and Cleveland Rhodes are listed as among the top threats to East Tech's continued supremacy.

Grange, New London, Lockland and Dennison generally were regarded as the favorites in Class B. Grange took the title a year ago by scoring heavily in seconds, thirds and fourths.

No school ever has won the golf team title twice in a row and Columbus North will be out to break that precedent. North's quartet of linkmen averaged 79 strokes each in winning their district title last week and they went into competition today as co-favorites with Canton Lehman which has won 13 straight meets this year.

One of last year's tennis champions will be on hand again—but not to defend the title he won a year ago. That is Bob Brown of Toledo Devilbiss who paired with his brother, Dave, a year ago to take the doubles crown. Dave has been graduated, however, and Bob has shifted to the singles competition where he ranks as a decided favorite.

Athletics To Open With Liverpool Red Sox At Firestone Park Sunday

Salem's only baseball team—the Salem Athletics—is slated to open its "home" season at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at Firestone park in Columbus, where all home games will be played until the final work is done at Centennial park, Scott Chisholm, sponsor, announced today.

The Athletics will vie Sunday with a powerful East Liverpool Red Sox squad at Firestone park in the official 1945 season opener in the county.

Salem already has opened, but the Liverpool game will mark the initial fray against a team from this county. Salem defeated Marlboro of the Alliance City league, 7-4, a week ago.

Work at the park diamond here has progressed sufficiently to allow the opening of the softball season Monday, but further improvements will be needed before the baseball team can begin operations, Chisholm said.

The game with East Liverpool was arranged yesterday when the slated contest with the Canton Spikers at Lake Placid fell through.

The Spikers, a strong outfit last season, are planning to take over the Placidia diamond as their home field, but are not quite ready to open play this year.

The Salem-Canton game will be played at a later date, it was announced.

Salem has a full schedule in the making this season. Chisholm has mailed cards and forms to some 50 surrounding teams in the hopes of completing the schedule at an early date.

Teams have been contacted in East Liverpool, Akron, Youngstown, Warren, Alliance, East Palestine, Lisbon, Minerva, Hanoverton, Kensington, Canton, Niles, Struthers, Sebring, New Castle and Sharon.

Chisholm hopes to make a complete summer's booking with Salem playing home games at the park on Wednesdays and Sundays.

A new lineup will be in view when the Athletics take the field this year, as several new and promising prospects have been added to the team's roster.
